A New Era in the History of the Dahlia

IN the past few years, remarkable progress has been made in developing the dahlia to a point where it rivals all other flowers in spectacular beauty and it has become the greatest of all exhibition flowers. The next step, naturally, is to make these large beautiful flowers equally useful for other purposes. With this aim in view, we have spent a number of years selecting from our new introductions, the sturdiest growers, possessing remarkable keeping qualities and have strengthened them by natural field culture.

The unprecedented demand for our special cut flower varieties, while the market was flooded with other kinds of dahlias, has proved the wonderful possibilities of the dahlia to the florist.

Our dahlias are grown under field conditions and all our exhibition blooms, as well as those for our cut flower trade, are taken from stock that is not forced.

The collections offered include these exhibition, cut flower varieties, as well as others that we recommend more particularly for exhibition and garden.

Collections

This special collection of six of our greatest prize winning dahlias, value $60.00 for $50.00.

Any three varieties included in this collection may be selected for $25.00, or three of any one variety, $25.00.

The many requests we have had for a collection of the very finest dahlias, has prompted us to make this careful selection and offer it at a price that will be a substantial saving to the purchaser. The varieties listed represent years of careful experiment and the strict selection of the best of our own introductions as well as the outstanding dahlias of the noted Kirby Collection. The variety of types and colors will be a revelation of beauty to all and will furnish an assortment of excellent prize winners for the Autumn Shows. Collection of 22 varieties, $100.00.
